Samples of Hundreds of Testimonials from Grateful People Cured by Dr. Walker.

Mr. Harry B. Koch, one of the best known, most popular, and energetic of Washington's young business men, whose handsome jewelry establishment is at the corner of Third street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, says: "I have been a sufferer for the past year from indigestion of a catarrhal nature and nervous dyspepsia. During the past six months my sufferings have been such as to interfere with my attention to business. I had constantly a sour stomach and pains across my chest. I tried doctor after doctor without obtaining any relief. Having read in the papers of the remarkable cures of Dr. Walker, I placed myself in his hands. The result has been marvellous. I have a better appetite than I have had for years; my sleep is restful, and I wake refreshed. I feel like a new man. All my dyspepsia and nervous symptoms have disappeared, and I am gaining flesh every day. I have lived in Washington four years. I reside at 922 D street southeast, and my place of business is at the corner of Third street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, where I shall be happy to verify this statement in person."

Mrs. Cora Field, wife of Mr. Joseph Field, a watchman at Judiciary Hall, now residing at 415 First street northeast (recently removed from 921 Twenty-second street northwest), was a sufferer from epilepsy for six years. Much of the time she was bed-ridden, and before she was placed under Dr. Walker's care had from six to a dozen spasms a day.

observed in each individual's own offspring, and then somehow the humorous side is gone, for of all rest-disturbing ailments, colic takes the lead.

Over-feeding is a prolific cause, and very often by reducing the food supply the ailment disappears of itself. But some quality of the milk will produce it as well, so that it is as well to have a cure ready. It nearly always comes at night, but cannot be timed invariably, for if the mother or nurse count on a couple hours' rest through the day, it is just as likely to arrive then. "Total depravity" can be applied to colic as well as to other things.

The symptoms are sudden, piercing cries and contractions of the legs. Some attacks are very severe, while others are mild. Catap-lexis and paroxysms, the remedies of our grandmothers, are of little use, for they only soothe without expelling the wind which causes the disturbance. Drops and cordials are useless for the same reason. Peppermint was about the only thing then used, which removed the cause, and that was made to stupify by adding laudanum.

The remedy now in vogue, with uniformly good results, is soda mint. The tablets are sold exclusively for indigestion, but a liquid form is the best for babies. Get a 10 cent. solution, and for a child up to a month old take one-half spoonful of mint to three or four water, slightly sweetened. Increase the dose with age.

The effect of this simple remedy in most cases is almost magical. The wind is thrown off in an incredibly short time, and the after effect is to soothe the nerves, so that sleep comes swiftly in its train. There is nothing deleterious in its composition, for the sole ingredients are bicarbonate of soda, ammonia, and pip. menthol. Enough water must be

TO-MORROW'S MENU.

BREAKFAST.
Baked rice. Cream.
Fried sweet potatoes. Coffee.
Buttered toast.

LUNCH.
Mushrooms stewed with a cherry celery. Philadelphia cream cheese.

DINNER.
Cream of tomato soup.
Roast beef with Yorkshire pudding.
Browned potatoes.
Creamed spinach.
Lettuce salad with green peppers.
Charlotte russe. Coffee.

Charlotte russe.
Beat the white of six eggs to a stiff foam and set upon the ice to keep cold until needed.
Whip up a pint of sweet cream to a froth, sweeten the egg whites to taste, and mix thoroughly with the cream, favoring with brandy to taste. Line a deep dish with slices of sponge cake or lady fingers, pour in the filling, and lay some of the cake over the top.
Keep cold until served.

Treatment for Colicky Babies.
Humorous allusions to "colicky babies" is never fully appreciated until the condition is added to kill the taste of the soda, which is very disagreeable.

Hot applications to the stomach are of first importance in this complaint. Flannel bands bound at the knee or wrung out of hot water, but not wrapped in flannel, or a hot-water bottle next the skin all help a speedy cure.
But no medicine is lasting. With attention to the diet, the number and duration of attacks may become shorter, but it will very likely be three months before they subside.

Oil of Lavender
The production of lavender for distillation is an important branch of the industry. In the county of Surrey, England, there are several large lavender distilleries. To these the growers carry their harvestings, to be subjected to the necessary process. The oil is contained in the glands situated chiefly on the calyx, corolla and leaves, but also to a less extent on the branches and flower stalks.

In the process of distillation two hours are allowed for the first run. This run gives the clearest and best oil, and when of a very high quality it is almost colorless. For the second run four hours are allowed, the oil produced being of a pale amber that, after having a stronger, coarser odor than that which results from the first run.

When the highest quality of oil is desired flowers only are used in the process. The quality of the oil secured depends also on the kind of season in which the flowers have been grown. Sunless summers result in a much reduced quantity and inferior quality.

The are many acres of land throughout the kingdom, producing at present only a scanty crop of grass, which might be used for the cultivation of the lavender plant. The demand for it is practically unlimited, and there is, therefore, little danger of its being produced in such quantities that the price would fall below a remunerative level.—Chambers' Journal.

NASTURTIUMS.
The whole little hill town blazed with them.
Of strange scarlet and oddest pink.
If you walked through the streets your garment was long Brushed by the flower and bent the stem That leaned from the gray fence chink.

And every tiny little girl one met Had their colors glowing against her hair, Or had daintily in her bonnet some Some faded that like a pink regret, Or a little rose-flushed despair.

And through the open, beautiful doors, Down the glimmering dust of ancient halls,
In the old blue ware of Orient shrouded, You saw them grouped on the shining floors, Or shelved on the paneled walls.

For the whole little hill town blazed with them,
And every girl and a flower to wear, Ruled like a star or bud like a gem,
Or a scarlet flame on a flickering stem, Or gold as her own gold hair.

—Laura Kemble Johnson.

IN BLUE AND GOLD.
The blue sea stammers in a mist of heat Beside the amber shore.
At anchor floats a brown-winged fisher fleet With blue sail and oar.

The pointed stocks against a purple sky Give back the sunset gold.
I hear the wheeling swallow call and cry, I watch the day grow old.

The day goes down in splendors strange and deep.
Emblazoned land and sea—O wind that sings this happy earth to sleep, Bring endless sleep to me!

—Elsie.

An Exhibit of Draperies & Laces

This season has attracted unusual attention. Several reasons for it—the newness and freshness of the stock, with the competition-distancing prices attached—has had much to do with keeping popular interest directed this way. For Monday's trading:
